THE GIRL I LOVED AT SCHOOL.

Sioux City Journal. When the mellow days of autumn wrap the hills in purple haze

And the sun seems all the dearer for the shortness of the day,
Comes a lovely apparition through the mists of other years.

And I don't know why it is so that my eyes will swim with tears
For I have to judge emotions by the text book and rule.

And I only know I'm thinking of the girl I loved at school.

Of the deepest, brownest velvet are the sweetly thoughtful eyes,
And the cheeks are like the roses that our grandmothers used to prize.

Not the pampered pinky blossoms that the hot-house man deals out
At four dollars for a dozen and with pasteboard wrapped about.

But the dear old daisy roses that would hold their little lit' Yess—
Just the sort I used to gather for the girl I loved at school.

And the lips—no, no! not ruby! for the coldness of the morn'g
Chills the jew's jew's burnished surface though the fiery rays may shine.

In the glazing of the gaiter; fitter far do they compare
With the warm glow in your cheek; the same fragrance lingers there.

The same thrill runs through me as when on the grassy stool
My lip first pressed the pulsing lips of her I loved at school.

And the form it grows distincter as the misty veil grows thin
All the silver belt that linked her, like the serpent shutting in.

All that earth retained of heaven, blazes out:
"The little fool!"

For I peried in my anger from the girl I loved at school.

And I know not if the feeling of the purple autumn
Brings us nearer to the greeting at the meeting of our ways.

If it be I may not meet her till we've crossed the Stygian pool.

Yet I think that I shall greet her as the girl I loved at school.

IS JOHN SHERMAN COLD?
The Senator Hits the Point for a Joke.

Now the Impression Get Out.
Morroe's Washington Letter in Cleveland Leader.

Not long ago in a chatting, smoking party of public characters, including McKinley, incidents of the late campaign were gone over with humor and resigned philosophy.

Said an Eastern Republican, who shall be nameless: "I heard a story about Sherman the other day. It seems that certain Ohio men in Washington got together before the Minnesota convention for the purpose of discussing the situation."

Sherman was present, and so were Foster, Alfonso Hart, Tom Coulter, and several others of general state reputation. Some one said that the Ohio delegation ought to go to Minneapolis free from restraint and instruction.

Harrison ought to be renominated, of course, and Ohio was for him, but if an attempt should be made to tie up the Ohio delegates there might be trouble.

"I don't understand that," replied Foster. "Every one admits that Harrison has given the country a fine administration of public affairs. The Republicans, of Ohio especially, ought to urge his nomination with vigor and enthusiasm."

I don't see why an effort to instruct our delegates would be dangerous.

"Then Sherman spoke up. 'You must remember, Foster,' said he, 'that the President is a cold man.'

"This statement coming from a base-burner like Sherman," continued the narrator of the event, "was too much even for Foster, while Coulter withdrew his head into his neck, like a turtle, and shook as if he were in a chill."

"The humor of this incident," said McKinley, "is based entirely on the hallucination that Senator Sherman is an austere man. He is not, but on the contrary, is courteous and obliging."

"I have gone to him many times," said I, "for news and opinions and have always found him exceedingly kind and willing to talk. His treatment of newspaper men especially is and has been singularly pleasant and frank."

"When Sherman was in the treasury," said a man who has known him for many years, went on to say, "he would come down in the morning with a slip of paper in his pocket on which he had, during the previous evening and night, put down those things which he wanted done during the day. Preparations were being made to resume coin payments and the work of the department at that particular time was very exacting and difficult. Sherman was always busy."

Frequently in the morning when he was ready to call in his assistants and the chiefs of bureaus to instruct them people would come in to see him. Many of them were simply sight-seers on a vacation. Their intention was to sit down and chat with the secretary. They wanted to tell him how the election had gone in their ward or township, and to give him incidents of the campaign. He got to know these people at a glance and when one of them had settled himself in an easy chair at his side, had removed his gloves and cleared his throat for the onslaught, Sherman would turn to him kindly and say: 'I am very glad to see you and am pleased that you called to pay your respects. I am exceedingly busy this morning, however, and must ask you to excuse me. He would then arise, and taking the man by the hand, would invite him to visit him at his home. 'If your wife is with you,' he would add, 'I should be glad to go to his desk, the man would march out, and when he got home would report that John Sherman was the coldest human being he had ever talked with. The reporters, getting hold of these stories, spread the scandal, and thus Sherman, from one end of the country to the other, was held up as being an impatient, iceberg, and popular fancy turned to man who, being far more reserved than he, and not half as accommodating, were not handicapped by his reputation.'

The Use of Perfumes.
Ladies' Home Journal.

Nothing is more sinning against today than the use of scents. To the many people to whom any strong odor is distressing, the present reign of scent bags in the garments of women of frequent public places and public conveyances is intolerable. It is only the faintest suggestion of a refined perfume that should ever be allowed to hang even for a moment about the belongings of a well bred girl; and even such a casual use of the merest whiff of the dainty and impalpable essence should be rare; to wear any redolence upon her person in sachets is unpardonable.

Adam's Footprints.
Philadelphia Press.

Mount Samanania, or Adam's Peak, one of the highest mountains on the island of Ceylon, is the scene of a romantic geological formation and the spot around which many curious legends and superstitions cluster. According to the Mohammedan story, Adam, after the fall and expulsion from the Garden of Eden, was taken by an angel to the top of the mountain, which now bears his name.

From its summit the mind's eye of the first man saw all the life which in after years should afflict humanity. These harrowing sights were such a weight upon the man, who, notwithstanding his sin in the garden, was yet a good man, that his feet left its imprint upon the solid rock; his tears forming a lake, the footprint and lake being both still visible. The footprint itself is 5½ feet long by 2½ feet wide and shows six perfect toes, the smaller one being as large as a good sized man's foot. For centuries devout Buddhists have made annual pilgrimages to the spot, and tradition says that the chain bridge across the canyon near the footprint was put there by direction of Alexander the Great.

Just What It's For.
A well known Chicago banker as he gave his usual cash Christmas gift to his coachman, a Hibernian, the other day said: "I trust you will enjoy the day, Pat. How do you propose to celebrate?"

"Well, sor," was the prompt reply, "O'll no to mass in the morning, bright and airy, so 's to hev a clear conscience for the rest av the day. "Then O'll see that the health of the old sod is drunk in a bit of whisky, and spend the rest av the day at home with Biddy and the children."

"The mass, I presume, will be quite impressive on such an occasion, will it not?"

"Indade it will, sor. And did ye never attend Christmas mass?"

"Never."

"Then ye have missed a grand sight, I can tell ye."

"Undoubtedly. Now, I'll tell you what I'll do, Pat—if you'll have the team ready in the morning I'll go to mass with you and see how it is done for once in my lifetime, just as a matter of curiosity."

Patrick was delighted. His employer reached the church Christmas morning in time to witness the entire ceremony. On the return trip the banker appeared to be deeply engrossed by his own thoughts. Patrick watched and waited for a word or a hint to show how the rites had impressed the visitor. At last on arriving at home he made so bold as to say rather timidly: "O! trust ye looked the mass, sor?"

"Oh, yes," was the curt reply. "It certainly beats the devil."

"'Is, sor; indeed it do, sor," was the jubilant rejoinder; "that's the object av it."

A Democratic Hog.
The Pendleton County News says: Our friend, Mr. John T. Harold, residing near town, killed on Monday, December 25, 1892, the boss Democratic hog, actually weighing 555½ pounds net.

This hog was fed by a Democrat, and on Democratic corn, and we expect a Democratic mess of sausage.

All Arranged.
Helen—How is your sleighing party coming on?

Leno—Oh, beautifully! I've invited ten men, who are to pay for the sleigh and the supper; and now I'm going to get the girls.

The Use and Abuse of Whiskey.
This subject could be dwelt upon to a considerable length, and yet much would remain untold, but all agree that the use, the proper use of pure rye whiskey is an absolute necessity, especially so now, when nature insists upon being stimulated. All regular physicians prescribe rye whiskey, and justly claim that Klein's Silver Age and Duquesne Whiskies are most reliable.

They do this not only because they have tried them but because the leading hospitals use them—find them the best stimulants in the world. Silver Age sells for $1.50 and Duquesne for $1.25 per full quart. For sale by all dealers and druggists. Ask for them or send to

Not from a Financial Chamberlain.
"I do not recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy from a financial standpoint, for we have others in stock on which we make a larger profit," says Al. Maggini, a prominent druggist of Bradock, Penn., "but because many of our customers have spoken of it in the highest praise. We sell more of it than of any similar preparation we have in the store." For sale by C. R. Goetze, W. W. Irwin, W. S. McCullough, C. Menckmoller, S. L. Brice, J. Coleman, C. Schnepf, W. C. Ambrecht, the Kurtz Drug Co., Lincoln & Co., W. E. Williams, John Klari, A. E. Deserving Praise.
For years we have been selling Dr. King's New Discovery for consumption, Dr. King's New Life Pills, Bucklen's Arnica Salve and Electric Bitters, and have never handled remedies that sell as well, or that have given such universal satisfaction. We do not hesitate to guarantee them every time, and we stand ready to refund the purchase price if satisfactory results do not follow their use. These remedies have won their great popularity purely on their merits. Logan Drug Company, Druggists.

The Features of the Money and Stock Markets.

New York, Jan. 16.—Money on call easy at 1½ per cent, last loan 2½ per cent, closed offered at 2 per cent. Prime mercantile paper 6½ per cent. Sterling exchange firm at $4 86 4/8 1/2.

Wall street was still in a bullish humor today, and the evidences multiply that outsiders for the time being have taken the course of prices out of the hands of the trading element, who, having completed their deals on the long side, are now working for a reaction. A feature of the day's operations was the increased animation and strength in all the stock markets.

The pressure upon Distillers was relieved, the story on the street being that an order to sell 70,000 shares of the United States Distillers' Corporation had been executed within the last few days. The other industrial were strong throughout, but the advance of 3 per cent in sugar was not surpassed. The only weak spot was found in Manhattan. The Grangers were quiet, the bituminous coal stocks were prominent, but owing to the reported high in the negotiations for a combination their prices did not advance. The general market showed a healthy expansion, and after the opening advance of fractional amounts further gains were seen all over the list.

Railroad bonds were still in urgent demand. Government and state bonds dull but firm.
